Trom the Atlantic Monthly for January. THE MIDNIGHT RIDE OF PAUL

BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

Listen, my children, and you shall hear Of the midnight ride of Paul Revers, On the eighteenth of April, in Seventy-Sve; Hardh a man is now alive Who remembers that famous day and year.

He said to his friend. "If the British march liv land or s a from the fown to-night, lings a lantern aioff in the belfrey arch off the North Church tower, so a signal-light — One if by land, and two if by sea; and I on the opposite shore will be. Ready to ride and enread the alarm frough every Middiesex village and farm, For the country-folk to be up and to arm."

Then he said good night, and with muffled our Silently rode to the Charlestown shore,

Meanwhile, his friend, through alley and street Wanders and watches with career ears. Till in the allence around him he hears. The mouser of men at the barrack door, The secund of aroun, and the train p of feet, And the measured treed of the greendiers Marching down to their beats on the shotp.

Then he climbed to the tower of the church, Up the wooden stairs, with steading trend, To the belief chamber overhead. And sharfied the sign of the town their perch (in the sometre rafters, that round him made Masses and moving sharps of shade—Up the light ladder, shader and tell, To the highest window in the wall, Where he made to listen and look down A moment on the roads of the town, and the moonlight flowing over all.

Beneath, in the church-yard, lay the dead in their night-encomment on the hill, neeping along from tent to tent, mill beening to whisper, "All to well!" increase only he feels the spell A memerically he feels the spell
Of the place and the hear, and the secret dread
Of the leady belfry and the dead;
For suddenly all his thoughts are bent
On a shadowy and thing far away,
Where the true widers to ment the bay—
A time of black that heads and fleats
On the rising tide, like a bridge of boats,

Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride, Booted and spurred with a heavy stride, On the opposite shore walled Panti Revere. Now he parted his horse saide. Now he gazed on the landscape for and near, The investment stranged the carti. This imperitues stamped the earth, And turned and tightened his saddle girth; But mostle, he watched with sager search. The beliry-tower of the old Norna Churon, As it rea cover the graves on the hill, Lonely, and spectral, combre and still.

And lo' as he looks on the helfry's hight, A glimmer, and then a gleam of light! He springs to the reddle, the bridle he turns, list lingues and sweet, till full on its sight A second lamp in the being burzs!

A hurry of boofs in a village street, A shape in the mounlight, a bulk in the dark, And beneate from the publies, in passing, a spark Struck out to a steed that die futures and first; That was sai! And yet, through the gloom and the lichs. Struck out by a seed yet, through the have sail And yet, through the half and he had yet that steed, in his flight, and the spark struck out by that steed, in his flight, Kingled the land into flame with its heat.

It was twelve by the village clock,
When he crossed the bridge into Medford town.
He heart the crowing of the ceck,
And the bathing of the farmer's dog,
And felt the drain of the river fog.
That rises when the sun goes down.

It was one by the village clock, He was one by the village clows, When he rode into Lering kan. He saw the gilded weathercock Swim in the moonlight as he passed, And the meeting house window, blank and bare, Gazo at him will a spectral glave, As if they already stood against At the bloody work they would look upon.

It was two by the village clock,
When he came to the bridge in Concord town.
He heard the bleating of the flock,
And the twitter of hirds among the trees,
And he felt the breath of the morning breeze
Blowing over the meadows two wn
And one was ants and asleep in his bed
Whe at the bridge would be first to fall,
Who that day would be first to fall,
Fierced by a British musker-ball.

You know the rest. In the books you have read How the British regulars fired and ded— How the farmers gave them bask for ball, From let he self-conts down the lane, Chasting the self-conts down the lane, Then crossing the fields to emerge again, Under the trees at the turn of the read, And only pensing to fire and load.

So through the night rode Paul Beveret.
And so through the night want his cry of alarm
To every Middleex village and form—
A ery of defance, and not of fear—
A vice in the darkness, a knock at the door,
And a went that shall endo ferwer more!
For, borne on the night wind of the past,
Through all our listory, to the last,
In the haur of darkness and peril and need,
The people wit waken and jiston to hear

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL

Financial Affairs. The Banking quarter was unusually quiet yesterday, and the announcement in the morning Pauss of the secession of South Carolina had no effect whatever upon the denizens of Third-street. The movement bad long been anticipated, and therefore caused no surprise nor alarm even to that most timid class, the capitalists.

Money matters were unchanged. The market continued stringent, without pressing demand, and the Discount-houses were losning, as before, very sparingly, even to their customers.

Boston and New York Exchange was still inactive and somwhat infirm at 11/4 prem; Baltimore 1@11/2 dis., and Philadelphia par selling rate. Gold was steady at 11/2, and New Orleans Exchange in fair request at

Flour remained dull and heavy, and Whisky in good demand at full prices, No alteration occurred in Grains or Groceries. Mess Pork was in moderate demand at $14@ 14 50. specting Wednesday:

The receipts of Gold from England and France, white following each other in quick succession, and stready amounting to about $1,700,000, favorably influenced the free currency for Exchange, but have thus far failed to advance, materially, the rates. About 100,000 bales of Cotton from the Southern ports, and Grain, Flour, &c., from New York, to the value of $3,500,000, have gone forward within a week, furnishing bills to nearly five-fold the value of the Builton received from the other side; in addition to specting Wednesday: " received from the other side; in addition to which a large sum in Exchange has been created by the orders on the railway and other Stocks. The effect of the Specie movement is, perhaps, more decidedly felt on the market for Money at Bank and on the street.

demand for first-class Paper, outside of Bank, is shaping every way easier for sellers. Thus we hear of double-name Bills, running up to May and June next, being done at 12 per cent. per annum, and shorter acceptances at the same rate, which went hard, less than a forfaight since, at 156/18 per cent. The Exchanges to-day, after the sailing of the Asio, are steady, within yesterday's quotations; most of the large transactions being confined among and between the shipping-houses and Brokers. The Import trade buy moderately. We quote: Lendon 103/4@104 for Bankers', and 102@103 for Merchant Bills; Paris f.5.50@f.5.46.

Owing to the heavy weights of a large proportion of the Cattle and Sheep, these figures do not quite indicate the actual appeals of meets.
